

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

A thirty-nine year old native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Mr. Palamara is a graduate of Duquesne University where he earned a degree in Sociology. Although not even born when President John F. Kennedy was brutally gunned down in Dallas, Vince brings fresh eyes to an old case. In fact, Vince became totally immersed in the subject at the tender age of twelve. However, it wasn't until 1988, the twenty-fifth anniversary of JFK's murder, that Vince began to do his own thinking on the topic. It was from this point that Vince decided to do research on the Secret Service aspect of the case, an area that has received a small amount of attention, especially up to that time period. Vince would soon contact over seventy former agents, White House aides, and surviving family members, resulting in his first book, Survivor's Guilt: The Secret Service and the Failure to Protect the President. Mr. Palamara has lectured nationally on the subject, as well as appearing on radio and television, including the award-winning The Men Who Killed Kennedy in 2003.
